Health and Safety

Dear Readers,

Look out! Whether you work in an office or on a building site, you need to be aware of health and safety issues. When you join a company, you will be given a safety manual to read; depending on your job, you may even have to attend a course. The subject is packed full of important vocabulary that you'll need to know, particularly if you have to record an incident in the accident report book. Take care and remember to work safely.
